Retail Building Still Surging

August Construction Permits Hit Year's Peak

BY PAM TROBOY

Retail construction reached a new high for the year in August.

Twelve retail building permits were issued during the past month. The all-time high occurred in July of 1976 when 14 such permits were approved.

Forty-five retail permits have been approved during the first eight months of the year. During the same period of 1976, 63 retail permits were issued.

Single family residential permits are also down over the previous year (31 percent). Only 1240 have been issued this year compared to 1633 in 1976.

Also, residential construction in August is about half that of last August, according to Ralph Shick, chief building official. One hundred permits were issued during the past 31 days compared to 204 in the same period of last year.

A 78 percent drop has also been recorded comparing August to July.

In July 178 residential permits were issued. August homes were valued at $4,795,010 bringing the yearly total to $58,808,470.

Shick said permits for one school (Thomas Elementary, 6537 Blue Ridge) valued at $1,345,000, two offices (dental-medical, 2101 Teakwood, $19,500 and medical, Plano Medical Center, Suite 306, $41,178) and five duplexes valued at $367,140 were also issued.

The largest retail permit issued went to Plano Properties authorizing the construction of a shell at Parker Square South. The building was valued at $60,000.

Other retail permits approved included: Braum's Ice Cream, 1401 Independence Pkwy., $35,000; Baskin-Robbins, 2109 Parker Rd., $15,000; interior finish, Suite 200, 2101 Teakwood; Jays Auto Supply, 2713 W. 15th, $10,000; and Fantastic Sam's Beauty Salon, 2713 W. 15th, $6,000.

Also approved were the following: Kings Subs, 2711 W. 15, $6,000; insurance agency, 3211 Independence, to George Pittard, $5,734; Hair Health Beauty Supply, 2729 W. 15th, $4,800; auto repair, 3277-9 Independence Pkwy., $4,309; barber shop, 2929 Custer Rd., to Max Gutierrez, $3,500; and enclosing speculative shell, 14 Jupiter Pl., to Hunt-Stephens, $2,875.

Shick's office also issued 202 electrical permits, 198 plumbing permits, 196 heating and air permits, 35 sign permits, 73 fence permits, 26 swimming pool permits and two moving permits.

Improper Wiring Causes Local Fires

Most August structure fires began in faulty electric wiring, according to Fire Marshal Bill Threet.

Six blazes were attributed to wiring, four to electrical appliances, one to careless smoking or use of matches, one to grease, one to incendiaries and one to fireworks.

Threet said five residences and one apartment were involved in fires. One other miscellaneous structure, nine grass, nine trash, and nine auto fires were also reported.

Insurance losses were rated at $10,000 with property involved estimated at $153,080. Threet said all claims have now been paid.

The firefighters also made three smoke investigations, checked three gas leaks, made one rescue, answered two false alarms and rendered 87 miscellaneous services.

The fire marshal made 51 inspections and investigated 25 blazes. Three persons were arrested on suspicion of arson.

In addition to the 133 fire calls, the department answered 113 ambulance calls.

Balloting Locales At Schools

The polls open at 7 a.m. tomorrow for the voters to decide the fate of a $1.8 million municipal bond election.

Residents living in Precincts 24, 26, 48, 49, 53, 54 and 55 will vote at Wilson Middle School located at Custer Road and Grandview Drive. Voters in Precincts 23, 47, 50, 51 and 52 will cast ballots at Bowman Middle School located at Park Boulevard and Jupiter Road.

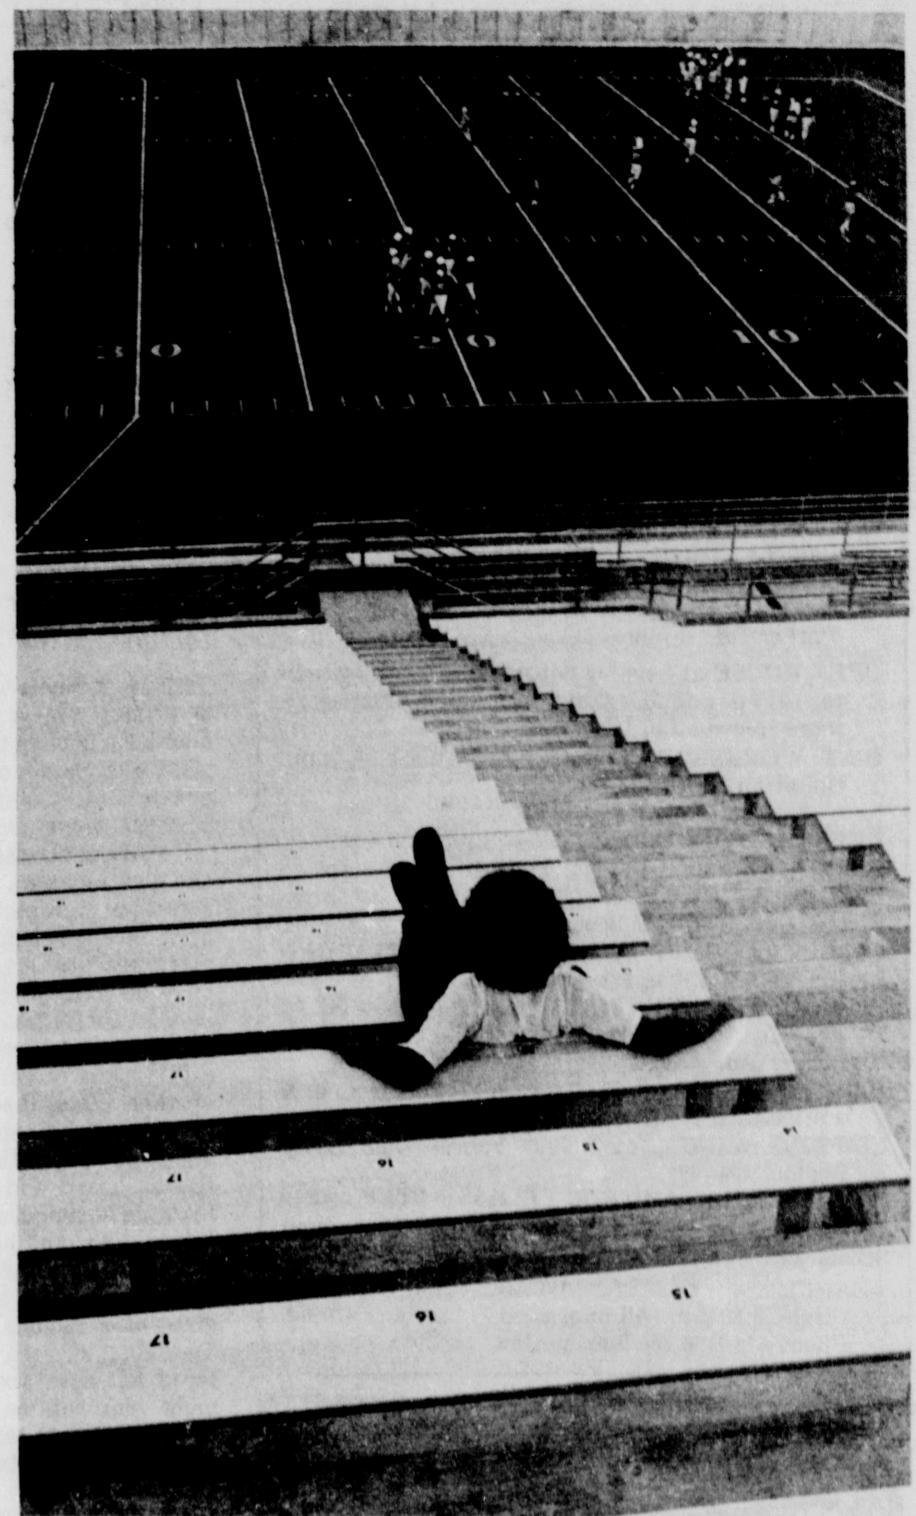

The polls will close at 7 p.m. Any resident of the city who has a valid voter registration certificate effective on or before Sept. 10, 1977 is eligible to vote.

Hospital Says Idi Amin Not in Coma

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Ugandan President Idi Amin has left Kampala hospital following a very short operation during which he never lost consciousness, a government official said today.

The official, reached by telephone from Nairobi, said Amin had left Mulango hospital for "security reasons" and went to an island in Lake Victoria. He would not disclose Amin's exact location.

Radio Kampala reported Thursday that Amin underwent an operation Wednesday for an undisclosed ailment, and later denied clemency for 15 persons to be executed in public by firing squad today.

The Loneliest Fan

The stands at Plano's new athletic stadium may be little lonely sometimes, but the field sure won't be. Some 95 games are scheduled to be played in the school district's $2.75 million facility. Grid stars from middle schools and high schools in the PISD, as well as the senior high Wildcats, will play their matches on the new artificially turfed field. (Staff photo by Mike Newman).

Outgrown City Hall Calls for 'Yes' Vote

Like an adolescent who shoots up out of his clothes before they can be worn out, the City of Plano has outgrown the Municipal Building.

Built just 12 years ago, the present facility is splitting at the seams. Five departments have already been moved to separate quarters and several others will have to be shifted soon.

Plano is accustomed to handling growing pains as the population has risen 207 percent during the past seven years, but the problem cannot be coped with administratively anymore.

The solution must now come from the voters. The Municipal Facilities Committee, composed of 43 business and civic leaders, believes that a new city hall must be built.

The Plano Daily Star-Courier agrees. The $1.8 million in bonds the city is asking for tomorrow will be money well spent.

Already the city is spending a projected $35,886 a year for office space in private complexes. This is money which gives no permanent benefits.

Spreading city departments to several locations also promotes confusion and inefficiency which could be eliminated with a centralized operation.

Even if tomorrow's bond election is approved, new facilities cannot be occupied until sometime in 1980. The proposed two-story structure and the present city hall, renovated to accommodate planning, engineering and code enforcement departments, should carry Plano through 1990.

If the city continues to grow at its present rate, 135,000 people will live in Plano in 1990 and it will be time to add more office space.

The proposed facility will be designed for upward expansion, so additional space can be added efficiently and less expensively.

Two years ago, the voters approved $725,000 for municipal facilities. Spending those funds, however, would provide adequate space only to 1980. By the time the city could move into the new quarters, they would be outgrown.

Citizens will get more for their money if adequate facilities are built now and city services aren't disrupted time after time to just keep up with growth.

We're going to vote FOR the bond issue and we urge you to do the same. We can only cope with growth when we plan for it and work to alleviate its side effects.

Oriental Worship

Approximately 100 Chinese Christians attend worship services on Sundays at the First Chinese Baptist Church, a project of First Baptist of Plano. Rev. Kenny Yau preaches in the native tongue of Mandarin Chinese at 9:30 a.m. Bible Study and 10:45 a.m. church services. The congregation's new sign, put up earlier this week, announces to all Chinese Planoites that a Baptist Church exists for them. (Staff photo).

Jalepenos Become Hot Food Item

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — In this birthplace of chili, the locals have relished for a hundred years the prospect of awakening their taste buds by nibbling on a jalapeno.

Recently, however, demand for the hot little green pepper from Mexico began moving northward from its traditional center near the U.S.-Mexico border. In increasing numbers, jalapenos have been introduced to the once-tender palates of other Americans.

The jalapeno has become so popular in Texas, where Mexican food regulars have developed galvanized mouths and tongues, that there are contests to see who can eat the most in a minute. A man from Corpus Christi downed 30 at a Kingsville contest earlier this summer.

Some say the jalapeno also has a therapeutic value for anyone with clogged sinuses. Beginners usually find themselves rushing for the nearest water if they get an especially hot one.

Those who develop an immunity to the immense heat of the peppers contend they add to the regular cuisine. Locally jalapenos are nibbled solo, stuffed with a cheese dressing or served in Mexican dishes.

The spread of their popularity, however, comes outside the Mexican food area, with Church's Fried Chicken, an international fast food chain headquartered in San Antonio, introducing the hot peppers as far away as Chicago.

"We started in San Antonio, then went South out of here," said Joe Mays, director of Southwest operations for Church's, which has grown into the largest world's largest importer of jalapenos. "We found the pepper was not only a local type product, it also enhanced the taste of our chicken."

Now Mays says jalapenos are quickly becoming popular in cities throughout the nation.

"Atlanta, Ga. outsells San Antonio right now in jalapenos," he said. "They're getting a tremendous reception in Chicago, Indiana, Ohio, which we used to call a bland diet area. As a result, we're the No. 1 pepper exporters out of Mexico."

"I'm sure the people in the East got quite a surprise. They used to order them calling them pickles. It never ceases to amaze me the pronunciations of jalapeno in New Orleans or Atlanta. (the 'j' in jalapeno is pronounced like an 'h' in Spanish, but in Atlanta some customers pronounce it as a 'j'.)

"Boy, did they catch on," Mays said.

The Whataburger chain also carries jalapenos as a specialty item in its franchise from the border to Oklahoma and its employees cut up the peppers on request and sprinkle them onto the burgers. "There's a tremendous demand for them," said Linda Reynolds, a local store manager. "We sell quite a few of them, but I can't stand them myself — the smell, the taste, the whole thing."

The growing popularity of the peppers, though, has put a strain on supply and demand, causing crash research this summer at Texas A&M University to get Texas to greatly expand its growing of jalapenos.

So food scientist E.E. Burns and research assistant Amy Wiesenfelder, a graduate student in food science, have recruited a team of flavor testers on campus in an effort to move on the demand with a varied offering of the peppers — some hot and some mild.

The A&M flavor testers are nibbling, gasping and sweating, as discreetly as possible, trying to set some sort of flavor standard with hopes a superior variety can be grown in Texas, sending the state ahead of California and Florida in domestic production.

Burns said results at his laboratory, already well known for developing compact foods for NASA's Apollo space flights, were being forwarded to the Rio Grande Valley to Texas A&M virologist Dr. Ben Villalon and his co-workers.

Villalon, of Weslaco, said he is not far away from releasing several virus-resistant varieties of jalapenos which they hope will be the first step in major production in Texas.

Virus diseases heretofore have limited profitable jalapeno production in Texas and elsewhere.

Burns said although jalapenos are hitting new highs in popularity in snacks, dips and Mexican style dishes, most continue to be grown in Mexico, making them scarce and high priced.

"It looks like a chance for Texas to make a buck," Burns said. "It just took us a long time to get smart."

Burns contends a mild variety of the pepper can be produced in Texas through Villalon's breeding program and does not influence its taste one way or the other.

Plano Attracts New Residents

City Draws Newcomers From All Over Texas, US

Editor's Note: Earlier this summer, M-PF Research Inc. presented an analysis of Plano's retail trade potential to the Plano Chamber of Commerce. The study was commissioned by the chamber, with the financial assistance of the City of Plano and Plano Independent School District, in late 1976.

This is the seventh article in a series drawing from the 50-page report.

The dramatic population increases in Plano have been attributed by some observers to the immigration of families from other sections of the U.S. to the Dallas area who have selected Plano as a place to live.

The results of the survey support this proposition.

A total of 32.6 percent of the respondents previously lived outside the state of Texas before moving to Plano. The highest concentration comes from the midwestern U.S.

Twenty-two percent of the respondents moved to Plano from another city in Texas outside of the Dallas metropolitan area. Of those who moved from within the Dallas metroplex, more Plano residents moved from Richardson than from any of the other Dallas County cities.

This migratory pattern does not vary greatly between the two market segments, indicating that new residents to Plano from out of state or from another Texas city follow previously set patterns.

Residential growth in Dallas County has been northward and Plano, lying in the path of this move, was certain to grow at some given time. The question addressed by the M-PF study is, other than these factors, what other influences exist in motivating people to select Plano as a residence?

The most frequent motivation was the Plano school system. Other factors frequently given are nice town atmosphere, lower taxes and proximity to respondent's place of employment.

Clear distinctions exist between the two market segments in relation to these factors. Of these four factors or influences, the new residents (those living here less than one year) place greater emphasis on lower taxes and employment proximity, whereas the longterm residents indicate the school district and atmosphere of the community as their stronger motivations.

Given the saliency of the Plano schools as a determining factor for choosing Plano as a place to live over other communities, the issue of whether the Plano ISD lives up to the residents' expectations becomes more crucial (citizens' attitude toward the school district will be discussed in a later series entry).

In terms of length of residence, the majority of the residents have resided in Plano for less than three years, not surprising since the most dramatic increases in population have been over the past three to four years.

YMCA Offers Variety of Classes Ranging From Pre-School to Adult

The first seven-week term of Plano YMCA informal education classes began this week with classes offered for pre-school, elementary, younger teens and adults.

Preschool classes for boys and girls include a variety of activities. Tumbling classes are offered for beginner and intermediate groups and provide improved gross motor coordination as a major physical benefit.

Preschool variety is another class that uses a multitude of teaching aids, such as puppets, films, flannel board and different learning techniques by use of hands, sight and hearing.

Classes offered for elementary-age boys and girls also include variety. Tumbling classes are offered for ages six through eight and will be held at Aldridge Elementary School with Janice Campbell as the teacher.

Another class offered for ages 8-12 is beginners bowling held at Plano Lanes, 2500 14th St. Instruction and fundamentals are given to new bowlers the first few weeks, then games will be played the remaining weeks. The class is held on Thursdays.

An archery class for boys and girls aged 8-14 is being held at the YMCA on Tuesdays. Equipment is furnished by the YMCA and the class is instructed by Pat Stanley.

Another new class, beginning guitar, is offered for boys and girls ages 9-14 on Mondays at the YMCA.

Students are requested to bring their own guitars. Fundamentals, chords, etc. will be taught in the class by Glenn Strain.

Adult classes include women's slimmatics held at the YMCA on Mondays and Thursdays.

Hatha Yoga is offered for teens and adults. Yoga exercises methods of stretching and relaxing of muscles, breathing and meditation. Ruth Theriault will be the instructor and the class will meet at the YMCA on Mondays from 7:30-8:30 p.m.

A new class being offered for adult women is ladies' golf lessons that are being instructed by Rick Young, pro teacher at the Los Rios Country Club. These lessons are held twice weekly on Tuesdays and Fridays.

Another new class being offered by the Plano YMCA is patchwork quilting for teens and adults. Brooks Morton is the instructor of the class that is being taught at the YMCA on Wednesdays.

The class includes patchwork piecing, quilt construction with an historical overview color coordination using a sampler of old-time quilt squares.

YMCA classes are held at the YMCA, 2601 Glenciff; Christ United Methodist Church, 2640 Glenciff; and Aldridge Elementary School gym, 720 Pleasant Valley in Richardson.

Registration is held at the YMCA business office only. Interested persons wanting additional information about fees, class instructors, etc., should call the Y at 424-8567.

Registration for the second term of informal education classes will begin Oct. 15 at the YMCA office.

The second seven-week term will begin Oct. 31 and last through Dec. 16.

Southland Sets Record For MDA

The Southland Corporation and its 6200 7-Eleven Stores raised $4.2 million for the Muscular Dystrophy Association by the end of the 1977 Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon, according to Jere W. Thompson, the company's president.

The amount collected set a record for funds raised for MDA by any corporate sponsor in the history of the Telethon, which raised a total of $26.8 million for MDA this year.

"The credit for this remarkable effort goes to the thousands of Southland employees, franchisees, customers, and suppliers," Thompson said. "They gave their ideas, time and efforts to support this worthwhile cause."

Time, Money Can Move Anything

From Power Plants to Factories

By JAMES J. DOYLE
GARDENA, Calif. (UPI)

If you have the time and money you can move anything, Charles Almas says. His family-owned company proves it by moving the biggest and heaviest things made.

Almas International has moved an Arizona electric generating plant, a factory in Georgia and a complete sewage disposal plant. It routinely moves 410-ton electrical transformers for Southern California Edison.

Could they move the Washington Monument?

"Sure," Almas said. "If you have the time and money you can move anything."

In Georgia, we moved a factory in a dozen pieces weighing from 150 tons to 450 tons. We moved it down the road about a mile and put it back together."

They've moved factory units weighing 900 tons in Alaska. "That was in 1976. They were Union Collier Corp. boilers.

"In Massachusetts, we moved the intake and exhaust tunnels for a nuclear plant on unstable ground. We jacked it up and moved in sideways, compacted the sideways, compacted the ground and put it back." He said it's mostly done with hydraulic jacks.

Charles is president of Almas International. His brother, Evert, is vice president and Evert's son, Dennis, is a company officer.

"Our dad was a general contractor," Charles Almas said. "In 1933, after the big earthquake in Long Beach, he started moving houses and about 10 years ago we got into the big stuff."

The operation used to employ about 75 persons, but now has about 25 permanent employees and hires local people where the jobs are. He said:

Recent contracts involved consulting work for General Electric in Iran where the utility wanted to move two transformers to an altitude of more than 12,000 feet.

Last year, Almas moved 15 separate modules of a fertilizer plant, each module weighing from 150 to 900 tons. The largest measured 60 by 90 by 30 feet — roughly the equivalent of four homes.

"The 152 units fit together like pieces of a jigsaw puzzle," Harry Steuck, 45, a foreman on the job, said.

The plant modules were built in Anacortes, Wash., and barged to Alaska's Kenai Peninsula where they had to be lifted and hauled from the barges to a site nearly a mile away.

To make the move, Almas used 24 eight-wheel dollies, each with a carrying capacity of 50 tons. A 14-ply 23-by-15 pneumatic tire inflated to 100 pounds pressure provided the cushion for each of the 192 wheels.

Charles Almas described a dolly as "two axles with eight tires and a 50-ton hydraulic jack. You tie them together and they stay on at least three wheels at all times."

Each dolly has its own braking system so there is no problem on downgrades.

Most of the crew started as house movers, he said. Dinsmore, 49, a native of Providence, R.I., started moving houses in Yucaipa, Calif., in 1954.

First National Strives For Low Energy Use

Acting in response to local and national energy conservation goals, First National Bank of Plano president W. H. Goodman announced today that they have initiated a program which will decrease the electrical energy required by their community service displays.

"The President of the United States has asked each of us to achieve a voluntary reduction in the amount of energy we consume each day.

"To meet that request, among other measures we're taking will be a shortening of the hours during which our community service display will be turned on," said Goodman.

"By curtailing the hours of sign operation from midnight to 6 a.m. and the identification portion completely, we'll be saving 25 percent of the power required by the display over a 24-hour period.

"In addition, we have arranged for electrical modification which will reduce the voltage (and, therefore, the wattage required by the display), thus effecting an even further reduction in energy consumption," he continued.

"We appreciate how many people have come to rely on our display; however, these hours of curtailment should provide the least amount of inconvenience."

Training by Extension Service personnel as well as testing, coordinated by the TDA entomologists, will be provided for all categories.

Applicators wishing to take the tests may sign up during the training session and pay their fees at that time. While there is no charge for the general test, a $10 fee will be assessed for each other category.

Individuals who pass the tests will then be eligible to make application for licensing as a commercial or non-commercial applicator of restricted use pesticides. By Oct. 21, a license will be required for purchasing and using restricted pesticides to be identified by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). By the October deadline, the EPA plans to have categorized some 1,400 pesticide ingredients for either restricted or non-restricted use.

They will gather to recognize the efforts of 25 maintenance men of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

One of those maintenance men, selected from six finalists, will receive from Mrs. Johnson a plaque designating him as winner of the 1977 Lady Bird Johnson Award for Highway Beautification.

He will also receive her personal check for $1,000. Mrs. Johnson will present a $500 check to the first runner-up.

The former First Lady established the Lady Bird Johnson Award eight years ago to recognize the department maintenance man who does the best job of highway beautification during the past year and to show her appreciation of the efforts of all these men to beautify roadsides and maintain attractive roadside parks.

Lady Bird Applauds Workers

Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson will assemble a group of state officials and private citizens interested in the beautification of Texas at the Lyndon B. Johnson State Park in Stonewall on September 10.

They will gather to recognize the efforts of 25 maintenance men of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

One of those maintenance men, selected from six finalists, will receive from Mrs. Johnson a plaque designating him as winner of the 1977 Lady Bird Johnson Award for Highway Beautification.

He will also receive her personal check for $1,000. Mrs. Johnson will present a $500 check to the first runner-up.

The former First Lady established the Lady Bird Johnson Award eight years ago to recognize the department maintenance man who does the best job of highway beautification during the past year and to show her appreciation of the efforts of all these men to beautify roadsides and maintain attractive roadside parks.

Gardens Can't Miss With Green Beans

By far one of the most popular, productive and tasty vegetables that can be grown in fall gardens in Texas are green beans.

Everyone knows how good fresh green beans from the spring garden taste but their flavor doesn't compare with a plateful from a fall garden. With proper variety selection, fertilizer, watering, disease and insect control and perhaps most important proper planting time, fall grown beans will be more tasty, more tender, and without doubt, more productive.

Many different types and varieties of garden beans can be grown in Texas gardens such as limas and pintos, but by far the most popular are snap beans.

Both bush and pole snap beans are commonly grown in Texas although the bush types are by far the most common because of their early maturity and the fact that they require less garden space.

Bush beans are best for fall gardens because they will make a larger crop before the first killing frost.

It's important that green beans for fall be planted so that they will mature a bountiful crop before the first killing frost.

In the fall, most varieties of bush beans will be ready to harvest 60 to 70 days from planting. It is important that planting take place early enough so that at least 10 days to two weeks of good harvest time can be expected.

Spider mites, also called red spiders, are one of the most serious pests of home gardens. Spider mites are not insects but are closely related to ticks and spiders.

They are about 1/60 of an inch long and vary in color from whitish, to greenish, to red.

Spider mites build up large populations very rapidly.

Eggs are laid on the under-sides of the leaves and hatch in four to five days.

A complete life cycle takes about three weeks. There may be as many as 20 overlapping generations in a single year.

Hot, dry weather is most favorable for rapid development of this pest.

Mite infestations produce tiny white spots on undersides of leaves. Heavy infestations cause bleaching or yellowing, first along the main leaf veins and then throughout the leaf.

Leaves then begin to curl, turn brown and drop from the plant.

The plant also may shed buds and small fruit.

Spider mites can completely defoliate a plant if not controlled.

Few, if any garden plants are completely safe from attack by spider mites.

However, this pest definitely prefers tomatoes, beans and peas.

Control of spider mites is often difficult, requiring beans over pole beans is that bush beans do not require some type of support on which to grow. Pole beans do require a few more days to mature but if given the opportunity they continue to bear over a longer period of time than do bush beans. For this reason pole beans make a better spring garden crop than a fall crop. In the spring, pole beans usually require 65 to 70 days from seed to harvest but in the fall they often take as much as 10 days to two weeks longer.

Garden soils for best production of beans should be moderately fertile. The home gardener is encouraged to avoid excess amounts of nitrogen which will result in a large amount of foliage growth but few beans. This may also delay maturity which is a real problem when a fall frost is just around the corner.

When planting beans be sure to obtain varieties which are recommended for your area in Texas. Some of the better varieties for fall gardens include Contender, Topcrop, Tendercrop, and Greencrop. If you have your heart set on pole beans try Kentucky Wonder, Dade or Blue Lake.

Bush beans should be planted in rows 30 to 36 inches apart. The seed should be planted about two inches apart in the row and one inch deep in a well prepared seed bed. Pole beans should be planted in rows 36 to 60 inches apart. Pole beans are often planted in hills but many gardeners prefer to seed them in rows leaving a little bit more space between the seed. As previously mentioned, pole beans will require some type of support for growth. Bean roots grow close to the surface of the soil so any cultivation should be limited to the top one inch of the soil to prevent damage to their tender roots. Since planting may occur during hot periods, be sure to maintain sufficient moisture to assure good germination and early plant growth. Avoid letting the soil dry out during the early stages of seedling growth. Maintain a uniform supply of soil moisture throughout the growth of the beans.

Try a fall crop of green beans in your home vegetable garden this year.

The Backyard Gardner

By PATRICK DENTON
Copley News Service

This is the time of year, when the growing season is winding down, that I like to tidy up the garden and begin preparing it for a fruitful period of rest.

I say "fruitful" period of rest because there is much that can be done during the autumn to improve the general health of the garden for next year's growing season.

One idea is to keep the garden clean of debris which will help harbor various diseases and pests to attack your garden next season. Also, as you pull up your pea vines, dig your potatoes, and gradually create empty spaces in your vegetable patch, the empty spaces can be top-dressed with any compost you might have. You might begin digging in kitchen waste where vegetables have been pulled up.

If you have planned the placing of next year's crops of vegetables, then you might concentrate particularly on the spots which will grow peas and potatoes, to build them up with vegetable waste and compost. Peas will produce longer and more abundantly in soils that have been built up with organic matter, because these soils retain moisture well and are rich in nutrients. Potatoes grown in soil laced with decaying vegetable matter are less likely to have scabby

During September, there are also several routine jobs that might bear looking at in your garden. Two of these include the dividing of both day lilies and peonies.

If you are planting day lilies for the first time, choose several varieties from early to late-blooming ones to have a succession of bloom throughout the season. Choose a spot in full sun if you are positive the soil is rich, and that it stays moist even in the heat of summer. Otherwise, plant them in light shade.

If your day lilies have become crowded, and are giving unsatisfactory blooms, dig up the clumps. Then pull the clumps apart. If they are too strongly entangled, the traditional method of separating them is to insert two digging forks back to back in the middle of the roots and pry them apart. This usually loosens them enough to facilitate the separation of the remaining roots. Do not plant broken or cut roots.

The planting site should be well prepared, as day lilies will remain there for several years. Dig the planting site over well, adding leaf mold, peat, compost, rotted cow manure or whatever organic matter you have access to. Dig holes large enough to allow the roots to spread out comfortably. Some experts advise setting the roots on a little hill at the bottom of the planting hole so the roots will spread apart around it. As you fill the hole in with soil, shake the plant gently to settle the soil snugly around the roots. Set the crown an inch below the soil surface. Plant tall types 30 inches apart, shorter types about 20 inches apart.

Peonies need to be divided and replanted with enough time to become established before the first hard frosts hit in the colder areas of the continent. For peonies, the digging up, dividing the clumps with two forks, and the preparation of the new planting site are the same as for day lilies. However, care must be taken in dividing the roots. Use a sharp knife if they can't be divided by hand. Replant pieces with at least four budding eyes and plant them with the eyes two inches below the surface of the soil.

Now is the time to arrange for planting seed, needed fertilizer and insecticide. Arranging with your local supplier now for needed supplies may save you a crucial delay at planting.

Another delay preventative that can be accomplished now is an equipment check. Clean, repair and lubricate planting equipment before it is needed. A week or two delay because of equipment breakdown or parts delivery may make the difference between winter pasture and only spring pasture.

The aim of the planning and preparation is to get winter pastures planted early. Research and experience in Texas and Oklahoma show that early planting pays off in fall and winter grazing.

Late planted small grain

(October) may come up but, in most years, will only furnish spring grazing.

September is the planting month for dependable winter small grain pastures.

Anything that causes a delay in planting could be costing a long delay in grazing.

Another decision to be made well in advance of planting is the type of pasture needed. Total production of forage from small grains does not have the large variations that occur with warm-season grasses. The time of forage production does vary to some extent, however. Oats and barley will produce well in the fall and spring but are not cold tolerant enough to produce during the short, cold days of January and February.

Wheat and rye are more cold tolerant so will produce some forage during mid-winter. Rye stops growth several weeks earlier than wheat, however. Each producer should determine when small grain growth is most needed in his operation and choose his small grain pasture accordingly.

If graze out of winter pastures is planned and grain production not desired, another operation could benefit the grazing production. Over-seeding the small grain pasture with ryegrass and a legume will add forage production and quality grazing in late April and May.

Generally, four to six weeks extra grazing can be obtained in this measure.

Care Can Perpetuate Flowering Annuals

With continued care and attention, flowering annuals can be kept attractive until frost, notes James R. Risinger, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

He offers these suggestions:

1. Remove all faded flowers to prevent seed production. If plants are allowed to set seed, the flowering period will be shortened.

2. Don't be alarmed if plants wilt slightly in mid-afternoon. This is the natural method of preventing excessive moisture loss.

3. Water thoroughly when soil is dry, soaking it to a depth of 5 to 6 inches. Allow soil to become slightly dry before watering again, and use a mulch to conserve moisture.

4. To encourage new growth, cut back the plants drastically. This is especially true of petunias as they have a tendency to become tall and leggy.

5. Stake tall-growing annuals to prevent damage from high winds or heavy rains.

6. Maintain a disease prevention program to fight off mildew and leaf spots.

7. Apply a complete fertilizer every four weeks.

Greenhouse Show Planned at A&M

A Hobby Greenhouse Show, featuring the most complete display of greenhouse and supplies for the hobby grower ever assembled in this area, has been scheduled for September 9 and 10 at the Texas A&M University Research & Extension Center.

Dr. Robert E. Moon, Dallas County Extension Horticulturist, said that the two-day show will include a series of greenhouse related seminars as well as the greenhouses and accessories.

Located 4.2 miles north of LBJ on Coit Road, the TAMU Center will be open to the public beginning on Friday, September 9, from 4 p.m. until 10 p.m., and on Saturday, September 10, 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Hobby greenhouse distributors participating in this event will include: Greenhouse Service and Supply Company; National Greenhouse Company; Greenhouse Systems Corporation; Morgan Portable Building Corporation; Lord and Burnham Corporation; Garden of Eden; Pyramid Greenhouse Company; TLC Greenhouse Sales; Mason Awning and Manufacturing Company; and others.

The seminars to be presented are as follows:

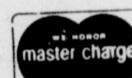

Greenhouse Structures—6 p.m. Friday and 10:30 a.m. Saturday including: frameworks; coverings; floors; also climate control; heating, cooling, humidifying and shading, and labor-saving equipment and devices.

Growing Techniques—7:15 p.m. Friday and 1 p.m. Saturday including: plant propagation; soil mixes; watering; fertilizing; also pest control: insects and diseases.

Popular Plants—8:30 p.m. Friday and 3 p.m. Saturday including: specifics of foliage plants; greenhouse vegetables; and hanging baskets.

For Saturday, Sept. 10, 1977

Sept. 10, 1977

Your prospects of material gain look very encouraging this coming year. Investigate thoroughly all possibilities to add to your resources.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Allow your nobler, charitable instincts to prevail today. If you know of someone who needs your help go to their aid quickly but quietly. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Look and act your best today when in public. What you wear and do will not only be envied, it will later be imitated by many.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your perception is above average in financial and career matters today. Heed any instinct or intuitions you have along these lines.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is a learning experience in store for you today. Be particularly attentive in the presence of anyone you deem to be wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Certain transformations are coming about in your manner of doing things. Today you will see evidence of this in a quiet, retrospective way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Go a little overboard today in catering to the person who's No. 1 in your heart. The object of your affections will be delighted.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Your good work won't go unnoticed today. Besides your pride in it, the possibility of larger-than-usual rewards is very strong.

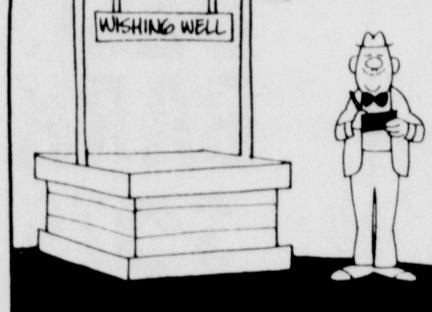

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can transform relationships or material projects into something far better than they were. Today your artistic abilities are above par.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) If you have an urge to throw a gourmet dinner today, go to it. Your talents are superb and your guests will be amazed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Words flow easily for you today so take advantage of this faculty to catch up on your personal or business contacts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Soft-sell and understatement work best for you today. Don't demand things. Just drop a subtle suggestion. Others will do the rest.

India ink tough to lift

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — I spilled some black India ink on a sweater. I washed the sweater a few times and the spot seemed to fade some, but now it just stays the same gray color. If there is any way to get this out I would appreciate hearing about it. — AMY

DEAR AMY — India ink stains are almost impossible to remove if they are allowed to dry. A Department of Agriculture bulletin suggests the following. Remove all pigment so the stain will not spread. Wash with detergent and let stain soak in warm suds to which you have added one to four tablespoons ammonia for each quart of water. Dried stains may have to be soaked overnight. If the ammonia changes the color of the sweater, sponge first with water and then moisten with white vinegar. Rinse well. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — I discovered that an easy and quick way to grate a few carrots is to lay a carrot down and then scrape very hard with a serrated steak knife. I can do two large carrots in just a few seconds. — WILLA.

DEAR POLLY — As so many of my friends have used and liked my way of cleaning grills and oven racks I thought I would like to share it with all your readers. Put barbecue grills or oven racks in a large heavy garbage bag and then pour one to one and a half cups of ammonia in the bag. Tip the bag back and forth to spread the ammonia around after tying the bag. Leave outside overnight, and spray it the next day with the hose to finish the job. — SHIRLEY.

DEAR POLLY — Often recipes call only for the yolks of eggs. I think I have come up with a unique way to save the whites. I store each egg white in a separate plastic sandwich bag and then put them all in a carton. This way I know there is only one egg in each bag. They do not dry out in the bags. — ALICE.

DEAR POLLY — I put all odds and ends of soap bars into a tin can and soak them in water. When the pieces become soft I stir them thoroughly and if need be add more water. I use this soapy water to pour in bathtubs, sinks, toilet bowls and then use a brush or rag to clean them. This is an economical substitute for expensive cleansers and I have just made the inside of my bathtub really shiny. So why throw away that little piece of soap when it can be used so handily? — MR. E.B.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell the lady who wanted to remove a white ring from a table that I upset a bottle of perfume on my chest of drawers. I put lemon extract on a cloth, just a little at a time so as not to remove the finish. By gently rubbing, I removed every trace of the white mark. — VERA.

Egypt Welcomes Western Money

By ADAM ZAGORIN

CAIRO (UPI) — Louis Reynolds, Chairman of Reynolds International, is bullish on Egypt. To prove it he signed a $7 million contract July 3 and formed a new company with local investors.

The firm, to be called Alumisir, will draw on Reynolds International's experience in manufacturing aluminum products to churn out 4,000 tons of pipes, auto parts, truck beds and railway cars by 1979.

"I think if (President Anwar) Sadat maintains his policy, business will get much better here. Egypt is a good prospect for foreign investment," Reynolds said in an interview with UPI.

Several years ago no one could have offered that assessment.

After former President Gamal Abdel Nasser's death in 1970, Egypt emerged from nearly 20 years of "Arab Socialism" with a record of hostility to the West and nationalizing foreign and domestic enterprise.

After borrowing an estimated $6 billion from the Russians to fight the 1973 Middle East war, Egypt had little to show except pride in crossing the heavily fortified Israeli Bar Lev defense line, and promises from the United States and oil-rich Arab governments for more aid and bigger loans.

To quote from one Western embassy's analysis, Egyptian officials were "more concerned with selecting projects which might be construed as ideal for the Egyptian economy than with promoting and facilitating the investment process."

This too proved a false dawn.

The law required that investment funds enter the country at an exchange rate which overvalued local currency. Its ambiguity on the terms for profit and capital repatriation meant foreign companies had to bargain with the government on every venture.

This year, however, prospects look brighter, particularly for investors like Reynolds International. They will reap the benefits of a new amendment to the investment law, effective June 9, 1977.

Ismail Osman, an executive of the Arab Contractors Co. which holds a 20 per cent share in the aluminum deal, spoke frankly about the amendment and its meaning for the Egyptian economy.

Firms wishing to tap Egypt's domestic market of 40 million persons rarely made it through the "open door," even if they were import substituting.

"The amendment will attract investors because it allows capital to enter and leave the country at the parallel rate (0.7 Egyptian pounds to one U.S. dollar) rather than the official rate (0.4 Egyptian pounds to one U.S. dollar)," he said.

"Under the old law funds came in at the official rate, but were repatriated at the parallel. Investors took a 75 per cent loss, so you can see why few of them came to

Palm Reading Nun Practices 'for Science'

By PETER M. ZOLLMAN

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) —

Palm reading is not the sort of thing you'd expect to find a Catholic nun doing, but Sister Grace Mary Flickinger specializes in it.

However, she's quick to add, it's all in the name of science.

Sister Grace Mary is one of a handful of scientists around the world specializing in "dermatoglyphics" — the study of palm prints and fingerprints for clues to genetic defects and other health problems.

All those little lines, ridges, loops and whorls often studied by fortune tellers to "predict the future" — may actually give doctors and scientists a method of checking whether infants have Down's Syndrome (mongolism), are prone to leukemia, or carry the traits of sickle cell anemia.

What's more, the initial tests would be quick.

painless and cheap.

"You could do a finger and palm print at birth, because it's not going to change the rest of life," Sister Grace Mary said. "There's no one characteristic which would pinpoint any sort of genetic disease (but) there are certain characteristics which would be more common."

The nun, an assistant professor of biology at Xavier University, earned her doctorate in biology, doing research in genetics through dermatoglyphics.

For her dissertation, she took more than 300 finger and palm prints.

She's now working on a project to study black youngsters in New Orleans to see if the prints show a correlation with sickle cell anemia, a blood disorder which affects mostly blacks.

Sister Grace Mary says palm print characteristics show up more often in persons with Down's Syndrome than they do in normal persons, and other scientists have shown correlations between specific hand patterns and leukemia.

Palm prints are set for life long before birth, at about 19 weeks in the development of the fetus. Sister Grace Mary said the unusual palm traits apparently are formed when there is an interruption in the normal development of the fetus.

Many people are skeptical when Sister Grace Mary tries to collect palm prints.

"I usually explain that I'm not in fortune telling and kind of waylay them," she said. "They either connect you with that, or they think you're with the police and don't trust you."

Sadat's 'Open Door' Policy Good for Country policy in the form of a liberalized foreign investment code.

This too proved a false dawn.

The law required that investment funds enter the country at an exchange rate which overvalued local currency. Its ambiguity on the terms for profit and capital repatriation meant foreign companies had to bargain with the government on every venture.

To quote from one Western embassy's analysis, Egyptian officials were "more concerned with selecting projects which might be construed as ideal for the Egyptian economy than with promoting and facilitating the investment process."

In practice this meant only export projects which generated foreign exchange were acceptable.

Firms wishing to tap Egypt's domestic market of 40 million persons rarely made it through the "open door," even if they were import substituting.

This year, however, prospects look brighter, particularly for investors like Reynolds International. They will reap the benefits of a new amendment to the investment law, effective June 9, 1977.

Ismail Osman, an

Egypt," Osman added.

He also explained that Egyptians working for foreign-funded ventures will be exempt from the employment code, which forbids firing workers for any reason other than a serious offense.

Furthermore the amendment removes the maximum limit set on workers' salaries. This provision will permit foreign companies to pay competitive wages and lure skilled workers back from the oil-rich Arab states where salaries are not restricted.

"In my opinion," Osman said, "the Egyptian government is eager for the private sector to assist with development and will do everything it can to help."

12 Hours a Day

CAEN, France (UPI) — The annual fair in this Norman port will be held daily from Sept. 16-26 inclusive from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Admission is 16 francs ($3.50).

Foreign entries will include exhibits from the United States, Spain, Portugal, Brazil, Tunisia and most West European countries.

Versions

Of Movie Titles
PARIS (UPI) — "The Shootist" starring John Wayne has just been released in Paris under the title "Le Dernier des Géants" ("The Last of the Giants").

Critics consider this not only an improvement on the original title but an improvement as well on the titles of some of the other Westerns that have been dubbed in French.

There is no single French word for "Backlash" so it was dutifully given the literal French title of "Coup de Fouet en Retour" ("Stroke of Whip in Return").

"Showdown at the OK Corral" came out "Règlement de Comptes à OK Corral" ("Settling of Accounts at OK Corral").

Actor Wayne sounds just as virile in French as he does in English. His anonymous dubber comes over in a tender-tough manner reminiscent of the late Jean Gabin.

Clavichord
On Your Vacation
PARIS (UPI) — The Festival Estival (Summer Festival) of Paris is not only sponsoring dozens of musical performances, including clavichord recitals, but instruction in assembling clavichords as well.

Courses in assembling clavichord kits are being given at La Maison de la Musique Ancienne at 88 rue Saint-Martin in Paris until Aug. 31.

A new clavichord costs at least $10,000. The kit costs only about $3,000.

Greek Pop Star
Tours Albania
ATHENS (UPI) — Marinella, one of Greece's best-known pop vocalists and her backing group performed seven concerts in Albania in August in the first tour by a Western ensemble to the tiny Communist state.

Two concerts were held in Tirana, capital of Albania, and the others were held in the towns of Fieri, Avlon, Argyrocastro, Skorda and Koritsa, a spokesman for the singer said.

Billions Go Down the Drain

LOMBARD, Ill. (UPI) — A single dripping faucet may waste as much as 50 gallons of water a day, or 18,000 gallons a year, with the annual cost to the public in excess of a half billion dollars, reports the Water Quality Association.

"If we assume there is one regularly dripping faucet in each of the 60 million homes in the U.S., the total waste amounts to three billion gallons a day, or 1,095 billion gallons a year," Richard Weickart, technical director of the association said. "At 50 cents per 1,000 gallons, this represents a cost to consumers of $547,500,000."

Noting that this cost could be changed into a gain, he said, "Repairing 60 million dripping faucets at 10 cents per washer would amount to only $6 million, so the net gain to the public might amount to $541,500,000 — still well over a half billion dollars."

Stray Dogs

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — There are more than one million stray dogs in Mexico City.

Busing Doesn't Bother Older Kids

By RICK VAN SANT

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — Long after the confusing courtroom arguments on school busing end, busing will remain a fact of life for many of our children every school day.

As the 1977 school year opened, the seniors bused to Dayton's Fairview High School had plenty to say about the course an older generation has mapped for them.

"Busing is okay for us in high school, but I don't think the little kids — the grade school kids — should be bused," Greg Pooler said. Berry Howard promptly disagreed.

"No, that's not right," he said. "The little kids should be bused and integrated. That way they might never start thinking in terms of a black and white difference."

Steven Reed attended all-black Roosevelt High before being switched to half-black, half-white Fairview.

"To me, Roosevelt or Fairview, it doesn't make any difference. But when I had to leave Roosevelt, my mother said, 'It's a shame.' Now my mother's not prejudiced, it's just that Roosevelt was right down the street from our house. Fairview is three miles away. She just thought of the convenience."

The kids wondered if it was right for them to be used as society's "guinea pigs."

"If you're going to integrate, you should really integrate the government," Arneater Boatwright said.

"I don't see that many black senators or congressmen."

"I don't think there should be forced integration of high schools. Grade schools, okay, but not high school. By age 14, 15 or 16, you're already set in your ways, anyway."

Does busing really "integrate" schools?

"Not completely," was the unanimous opinion.

"This school is supposedly integrated and balanced — half black and half white," Boatwright said. "But take a look at our cafeteria. You've got the blacks on one side and the whites on another."

Why?

"That's hard to say, but I know I tend to hang tighter with the friends I had before," Leah Jackson said.

"Kids from my neighborhood, you know."

But several felt things are different at integrated grade schools.

"Little kids don't know what prejudice is," Howard said. "Blacks and whites run around together in the grade schools without ever thinking anything about it. You can tell just by watching."

Workshops Scheduled for UT-Austin Nursing School

The School of Nursing at The University of Texas at Austin has scheduled three continuing education workshops for late September and October.

"It is well documented that formal nursing education becomes obsolete within five years," says Joyce Hoover, the Nursing School's director of continuing education. "UT's continuing education program in nursing is a community service to keep nurses up to date professionally and improve health care services for the citizens of Texas."

The workshops include: Sept. 28-30, "Two-Park Basic Workshop for Nursing In-service Educators (Part II will meet Oct. 26-28). Consultant will be Dr. Mildred Tapper, associate professor of nursing. The program is designed for registered nurses who are responsible for staff development and in-service training. Registration fee for both parts is $80.

Oct. 12-14, "Physical Assessment of the Adult." Consultant will be Darien Conlee, a registered nurse who is program associate at the Area Health Education Center at Corpus Christi. Designed for registered nurses, the program is planned to increase the physical assessment skills of nurses working in areas to use the skills or teach them to others. Registration fee is $45.

All workshops will meet at the UT School of Nursing, 1700 Red River.

Participants who complete the workshops will receive credits in Continuing Education Units (CEUs) from the UT Austin School of Nursing.

For further information, write Joyce Hoover, University of Texas, School of Nursing, 1700 Red River, Austin, Texas 78701 or call (512) 471-4396.

Whip Inflation NOW
OWN A PIECE OF THE BLOCK...

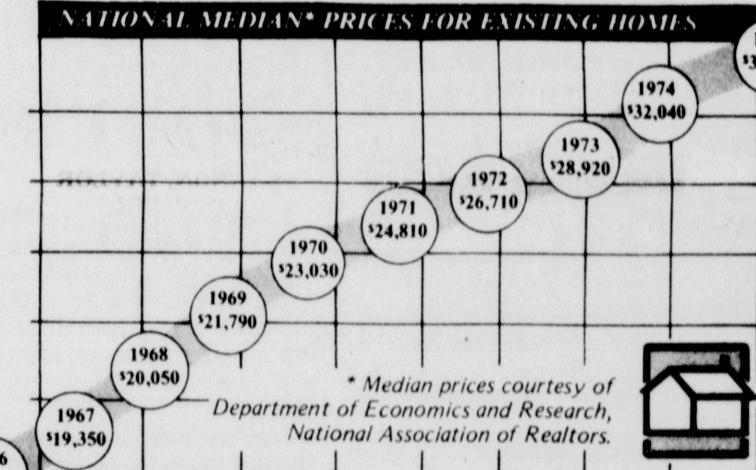

Are you a BULL . . . or a BEAR . . . or a HOMEOWNER?

Bulls make money when the stock market goes up. Bears make money when the market goes down. Homeowners just enjoy living in their beautiful home while the value of their home keeps on increasing.

How many investments can you make that can double your money? The median price for an existing home was $18,760* in 1966; in February 1976 the median price for an existing home was $36,200*.

Home ownership is a pretty picture.

There are of course, many more advantages to home ownership than merely making a profit. There is security, contentment, privacy, pride of ownership as well as increasing equity and important tax deductions.

Pokes Kick Pittsburgh

By BRUCE B. BAKKE

DALLAS (UPI) — Four plays into the final preseason exhibition, the Dallas Cowboys defense finally jelled.

Earlier this week following the Cowboys' humiliating loss to the Houston Oilers, Dallas coach Tom Landry had said he was confident his defense would become a strong unit, but he wasn't sure when that would happen.

At the start of the Cowboys' final preseason game Thursday, it looked as though it would not be the night for the Dallas defenders to find themselves. On the first play of the game, Pittsburgh's Franco Harris smashed for 15 yards. Rocky Bleier gained four on the next play and then Harris ran for five with a pitchout.

Then the Dallas defense took hold.

Harris fumbled, fell on the ball for a two-yard gain and a first down. He lost three yards and Terry Bradshaw threw an incomplete pass. On the next play veteran defensive tackle Jethro Pugh sacked Bradshaw for an 11-yard loss and Dallas dominated the game from that point on for a 30-0 victory.

tory over Pittsburgh.

"This was good as far as getting our confidence back. The press blew that 'loss to Houston' way out of proportion. It really wasn't that bad," said Dallas safety Charlie Waters.

"It was good for our confidence, though, to come back and control a team like Pittsburgh."

Pittsburgh coach Chuck Noll said, "There are no excuses. We didn't do anything well. Everything they did was right."

Noll said he was concerned about the Steelers' showing in their final preseason game.

"I was expecting a better ball game," he said. "We didn't get it. You have to point the finger at the way the Cowboys played."

Efren Herrera kicked field goals of 44, 47 and 35 yards for Dallas. Roger Staubach threw a five-yard touchdown pass to Jay Saldi and Danny White tossed 21-yard scoring strike to Butch Johnson. Robert Newhouse, who ran for 23 yards in eight carries, scored on a one-yard dive.

The Cowboys intercepted a pass from each quarterback and also blocked a punt.

SWC Football Debuts Saturday

By MIKE RABUN
UPI Sports Writer

The Southwest Conference football season and all the surprises it usually brings commences Saturday with eight of the nine league teams in action and most of them having a little mystery surrounding them.

Will Texas A&M and Texas Tech be as good as most people think they will?

Can coach F.A. Dry make a difference at Texas Christian?

Will Paul Rice become the kind of running back at SMU folks thought he could be when he left Lewisville, Tex., a few years ago?

Can Arkansas and Texas rebound from their bland campaigns of 1976?

Will Earl Campbell or Rodney Allison really come in for Heisman Trophy consideration?

The answers will be forthcoming. Or, as Arkansas coach Lou Holtz says:

"You never know whether you're ready to play or not, but we have no choice. We have to be ready because the game is on the schedule."

The opening weekend features two conference games and a contest with a revenge motive.

Baylor and Texas Tech hook up in the highlight attraction in Waco at 4 p.m. The Red Raiders, with Allison at quarterback, go into the game as the eighth ranked team in the country and definitely have title ambitions. They will be a decided favorite over a young Bears club which will be going with a quarterback who is still recovering from a slight shoulder separation.

The rest of the opening weekend finds:

— SMU and TCU involved in a potentially close conference opener in Fort Worth (4 p.m.). Paul Rice, who set all sorts of records in his high school days but failed to produce at USC, will start in the Mustangs' backfield with Arthur Whittington. Dry, who hired on at TCU from Tulsa this year, will have to rely on emotion a lot this year because there is not much talent.

— Seventh-ranked Texas A&M hosting Kansas (4 p.m.). The Aggies, winners of their last seven games in 1976, might be dreaming of a national championship, but they cannot afford to take any team from the Big Eight lightly.

— Texas at home against Boston College (7:30 p.m.). Coach Fred Akers makes his debut in Austin, replacing Darrell Royal, and the Longhorns want very much to revenge last year's 14-13 loss to the Eagles. Akers has said Campbell, the Longhorns' ground gobbling fullback, is set for a super year and this game could get him off to a good start.

— Arkansas entertaining New Mexico State (7:30). Holtz, fast with the one liners, will send out his first Razorbacks team, a club that will feature last year's leading SWC rusher, Ben Cowins. "No matter how good we are, we won't be as good as the alumni think we will be," said Holtz.

— Rice opening in Houston against Idaho. The Owls will try to crank up without all-American quarterback Tommy Kramer and they had best put out their No. 1 effort against Idaho because after this week the Owls will have trouble winning.

— The defending conference co-champion Houston Cougars wait until Monday night to begin their season, starting off with UCLA in a nationally televised game at the Astrodome.

Of the opening games, the Baylor-Tech affair is the most critical to the long-range goal of showing up in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 2.

"We could be a quivering mass of jello or tree top tall after our game with Tech," said Baylor coach Grant Teaff. "This could be a fun and interesting team to watch. If these kids have some good things happen to them early, people could be saying 'watch out.'

But Tech has a lot going for it.

In four years as head coach at Vanderbilt and Tech, coach Steve Sloan has not lost an opening day game. And the Bears have had trouble in first-game encounters of late.

Last year, for instance, the Bears were expected to knock off the Houston Cougars with ease and wound up being the first of many Houston victims, 23-5.

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Bears Thursday placed veteran offensive tackle Lionel Antoine on the injured reserve list and said his chronic knee problems will keep him out for the season.

A final audit showed that net proceeds from this year's event were $19,233.

"Based on these figures the board of directors voted to increase the purse," said Ken Thelen, GMO president.
